

Bolsheviki Win The Odd Trick At Hague Table

Litvinoff Scores Heavily in Obtaining Consent of Nations to a Meeting With All Delegates Present

Will Make New Proposal

Hint Is Given Moratorium Will Be Sought on Payment for Lost Property

THE HAGUE, July 18 (By The Associated Press).—The Russians won the rubber today in the game being played at The Hague. They had a good hand and played it with dash and conviction. They drove their adversaries to a corner and forced capitulation to their demand for a joint plenary session, to find, if possible, a way of saving the conference and continuing the work, the aim of which is the reconstruction of Russia and her re-entry into the comity of nations.

The Bolshevik victory was complete, except possibly on one point. The non-Russian delegates insist that when the Soviet delegation meets them, probably tomorrow, the Russians will restrict their statement to absolutely new proposals and clear cut propositions justifying resumption of the negotiations. The Bolsheviks took their victory calmly and were not disposed to murmur against the conditions imposed on them.

May Ask for Moratorium One of the Soviet delegates informed The Associated Press tonight that the Russians would meet the non-Russian delegates and endeavor to submit something new and tangible relative to compensation for confiscated property which Russia was unable to restore to the former owners, but added laughingly:

"Moratorium is a popular word nowadays. We may ask for a moratorium—in other words, for a delay of some twenty years for the payment of compensation. How can Russia do otherwise in her present economic condition?"

The Soviet representatives flatly refused to attend the morning session of the sub-commission on property, to which they had been bidden, and which many of the delegates were convinced would be the last session of the conference. The non-appearance of the Russians caused everybody to fidget and watch the clock anxiously.

After a wait of half an hour somebody suggested telephoning to their hotel, and the answer was received: "We are not coming." We are saying what we have to say in a letter, now on the way." Soon a motor car arrived with a messenger bearing Maxim Litvinoff's letter scoring the European delegates for the manner of their invitation and demanding a meeting with the entire non-Russian delegation, so as to afford an opportunity to elaborate a basis of accord on all the problems of the agenda—property, debts and credits.

Litvinoff Blames Powers Litvinoff's communication was plainly phrased to drive home the idea that the non-Russians by their dictatorial manner were ruining the Hague conference, and therefore the Genoa conference, from which it sprang, and ended by referring to the consultation of the hopes of millions of people of Europe waiting patiently for help.

The property sub-commission promptly arranged a full meeting of all the non-Russian delegates, and this meeting decided to grant the Russian request.

"The Dancing Girl" To Be Erlanger's Musical Show

A. L. Erlanger announced yesterday that he had selected "The Dancing Girl" as his annual musical comedy production for the forthcoming season. This is an American version of "Die Bajadere," one of the outstanding successes of the Berlin stage. The music is by Emory Kalman, composer of "Miss Springtime," the American book by William Le Baron and the lyrics by Bud de Sylva. Vivienne Segal will have the leading part.

It is a story of an Indian prince, who falls in love with a Parisian actress. The scenes are laid in Paris and give opportunity for a colorful presentation. The supporting cast includes Thorpe Bates, Charles Judels, Vivian Oakland and Princess White Deer. Fred C. Latham will stage the piece and Julian Mitchell will put on the dance numbers. It will have the preliminary try-out in Philadelphia early in September.

Royal Family Sees Lord Mountbatten Wed Miss Ashley

Prince of Wales, as Chum's Best Man, Offers Ring at the Wrong Moment in Service at St. Margaret's

From The Tribune's European Bureau Copyright, 1922, New York Tribune Inc. LONDON, July 18.—Crowds filled every open space outside St. Margaret's, Westminster, today when Britain's richest heiress, Miss Edwina Ashley, became the bride of Lord Louis Mountbatten, a grandson of Queen Victoria. The occasion led the parade of troops and the pageantry connected with Princess Mary's wedding, but the assemblage in the church included the royal family, members of the Cabinet and most of the diplomatic corps.

The bride, who is a granddaughter of Sir Ernest Cassel, from whom she inherited her fortune of $5,000,000, entered the church on the arm of her father, Sir John Bradbury, from London, where he has been working for the British government. The bridegroom, who is a member of the British government, is expected to give considerable impetus to the plan for a new reparations settlement involving the cancellation of the French debt to England and the reduction of the German indemnity to 50,000,000,000 gold marks.

An unusual touch to the wedding was lent by the presence in uniform of a party of marines and sailors from the ship on which Lord Mountbatten accompanied the Prince of Wales on his Eastern tour. They arrived in two motor trucks and later were taken to the reception at Brook House, in Park Lane.

LONDON, July 18 (By The Associated Press).—King George and Queen Mary attended the wedding, after which a reception was held at the Park Lane mansion, which is part of the bride's inheritance and which will be the home of the couple after their honeymoon in Spain as the guests of King Alfonso and their later trip to America.

The bridegroom, whose father, the late Lord Milfordhaven, was Prince Louis of Battenberg until the King abolished all the German titles held by English royalty, is a young naval officer who acted as aid to the Prince of Wales in his tours of Australia and Japan. He has been the Prince's closest friend and companion.

Premiers Plan New Conference On Reparations

Meeting Likely To Be Held in Italy Within the Next Two Weeks and May Precede Parley in London

Poincare Waits for Data

Bankers Queried on Their Attitude Toward Proposed New Debt Settlement

PARIS, July 18 (By The Associated Press).—A general meeting of the Allied Premiers in some Italian city to discuss the reparations problem is expected to be held within the next fortnight, and may precede the meeting between Premiers Lloyd George of Great Britain and Poincare of France on the same subject. Poincare has just sent a note to the British government saying that he could not fix a date for the conference in London before he received the report of the committee on guarantees on the German financial situation, which will form the basis of the discussion.

Most of the members of this committee have returned to Paris and probably will meet tomorrow to draw up a report on the financial situation in Germany. This, it is expected, will require several days. It may be ready for the Reparations Commission by the end of the week and, pending receipt of the report, governmental and reparations circles are withholding comment.

New Plan Acquires Impetus The return to Paris today or tomorrow of Sir John Bradbury from London, where he has been working for the British government, is expected to give considerable impetus to the plan for a new reparations settlement involving the cancellation of the French debt to England and the reduction of the German indemnity to 50,000,000,000 gold marks.

Sir John has been the chief medium in bringing this plan before the members of the Reparations Commission, and it is believed he will bring with him a statement of the definite basis on which Great Britain would enter into the proposed settlement.

An expression from the International Committee of Bankers, which is the organization to consider the subject of the German loan, as to just what its attitude would be in the event the fundamental principles of the proposed plan were adopted is now being sought, according to reliable sources. Advocates of the scheme believe the bankers would be willing to reconvene immediately and reconsider the project of a vast loan to Germany if such a scheme were approved.

Forced Loan in Reichstag BERLIN, July 18 (By The Associated Press).—After a prolonged discussion the bill providing for a compulsory loan of 70,000,000,000 marks was read for the third time in the Reichstag today. The limit of a subscription to the loan of 3,000,000 marks. The compulsory loan operates simultaneously with the new laws on legacies and income tax. The income tax and legacy tax bills were also read for the third time.

French Willingness to Cut Debt Hailed Here

Wall Street Regards News From Paris as Sign of Renewed Accord With Great Britain

News from Paris that the French were viewing with increasing favor British proposals for a reduction in the aggregate of reparations from 132,000,000,000 to 50,000,000,000 gold marks in return for cancellation by the British government of France's debt to it, together with certain pledges assuring France's security, were welcomed in international banking circles here yesterday as the most hopeful start toward a settlement yet effected. The plan as at present outlined may be subjected to many modifications, but it is believed to have a basis for agreement between the two nations. Such an agreement is held by bankers to be an essential preliminary to a final adjustment of European problems, including the German situation.

The significance of the news lies not in the fact that the British have made the proposal, but that France is willing to consider it at all," said a partner in an international banking house. "The British attitude has been well defined for many months past, although perhaps not previously so clearly formulated. France, however, has hitherto maintained firmly that she could consent to no substantial modification of the reparations aggregate as provided for by the Versailles Treaty for such concessions as Great Britain has offered, including debt remission. It is difficult at this distance to judge how far discussions have gone or their exact basis, but I should be inclined to the view that the British must have made offers of stronger guarantees of French security than up to now to have attracted France's interest."

The project was said by bankers to constitute the first publicly reported effort to reach an agreement along lines that have been dreamed by financiers and economists to be sound.

FIGHT FOR REWARD On as 2 Rathenau Slayers End Lives

Bestowal of 2 Million Marks in Doubt Because Two Assassins Killed Selves in Castle Before Capture

HALLE, Prussian Saxony, July 18 (By The Associated Press).—The suicide of the two assassins of Foreign Minister Rathenau when cornered by the police in a mountain castle has started much speculation as to who will get the reward of 2,000,000 marks offered by the government for their capture. Reports are conflicting as to who gave the first information that led to the trailing of Hermann Fischer and Edwin Kern, the fugitive pair, to the turret of Sasseck Castle, near Bad Koesen, where they shot themselves as the police closed in. One informant says he saw the men on Sunday near Bad Koesen, about an hour's walk from the castle.

Fischer and Kern apparently had saved two cartridges for an emergency should they fall into the hands of the police, who had been chasing them for more than three weeks. Finally at bay in the castle ruins in the wooded solitude of the Thuringian hills, "We die for our ideals," they are reported to have shouted from the balcony at the police encircling the castle awaiting reinforcements. Then, after cheering for Captain Erhardt, head of the notables, they rushed into the turret and fired the fatal shots.

The two men were found with fatal bullet wounds in the head after the police had forced an entrance to the tower by chopping down the door with axes. They still wore the clothing described in the warrants for their arrest.

The discovery of the hiding place of Fischer and Kern followed a report brought to Halle Sunday evening by two holiday tourists that they had seen a light in the castle, from which the usual occupant, Dr. Stein, a writer, was known to be absent. An investigation by the police ensued, but reinforcements had to be awaited before they were able to gain entrance.

Dr. Walther Rathenau was murdered June 24 while driving in an automobile in a Berlin suburb. Numerous arrests of suspects were made, but the police announced that three men, Fischer and Kern and Ernst Werner Tschow, were primarily responsible for the Foreign Minister's death. Tschow, who is a student, twenty-four years old, was arrested near Frankfurt-on-Oder June 28. He is alleged to have been the driver of the car in which the assassins rode as they drove up the hill carrying the Foreign Minister and fired the fatal shots.

Proud to Die For Erin, Wilson Assassins Cry

Jury Convicts Pair in Three Minutes and Penalty of Death Imposed 26 Days After Murder of Marshal

Defy Judge From Dock

One Attempts a Political Tirade and Other Calls for International Court

From The Tribune's European Bureau Copyright, 1922, New York Tribune Inc. LONDON, July 18.—The swift and dramatic trial which resulted today in passing the death sentence on two Irishmen for the murder of Field Marshal Sir Henry Hughes Wilson was marked by the final statement of one that their case should have been heard before an international court, and by the refusal of the judge presiding at Old Bailey to permit a statement from the other, to be read on the ground that it was a political manifesto.

There were two women on the jury, which took three minutes to return a verdict of guilty against the two men, Joseph O'Sullivan and Reginald Dunn, both twenty-four years old. It was when Justice Shearman asked the condemned men whether they had anything to say that Dunn spoke of an international court "to consider my rights and wrongs in ridding the world of a scourge." O'Sullivan declared "All I've done is for Ireland and for Ireland I'm proud to die."

Shouts Defiance at Court Both prisoners heard the sentence apparently unmoved, but before leaving the dock O'Sullivan shouted "You may kill my body, but my spirit you'll never kill."

After the Attorney General had brought out the facts of the shooting character evidence was given for the prisoners, showing that they had good war records in Irish regiments, both being severely wounded. The police took the strictest precautions to prevent interruption.

LONDON, July 18 (By The Associated Press).—Twenty-six days from the date on which Sir Henry Wilson was murdered the men who fired the fatal shots were convicted and sentenced to death by a jury of twelve men. This constitutes a record in the dispatch of a criminal case even for England, where murder trials usually are completed more quickly than in most countries.

The Attorney General's case for the prosecution required barely half an hour to present. The prisoners had admitted the killing of the Field Marshal, but the judge nevertheless ordered the trial to continue.

Pair Offer No Evidence Both Dunn and O'Sullivan said that they did not wish to give evidence or call witnesses. Dunn was then given the liberty of addressing the jury. He said:

"I suppose I must cut out the patriotic attitude I feel inclined to use under these circumstances, but I must state that I still feel proudly conscious that I am an Irishman."

Dunn then said that he desired to give an honest statement from his own national point of view. This privilege, he stated, had been denied him. He had taken his share in European fighting, he said, for the principles for which England stood.

"Those principles, I have found, were not applied to my own country, and I have, therefore, endeavored to strike a blow for them," asserted Dunn.

He stated he did not doubt that the jury would find both him and O'Sullivan guilty. He then added:

"But your verdict will not be sufficient to save my country from the fate which has befallen it."

Denies He Was Paid "The motives which impelled me in this action were seriously considered. I received no money for this particular bit of business. I trust that a higher court will judge me by my actions in this world and will consider the purity of my intentions."

Asked after the verdict if he had anything to say why sentence of death should not be pronounced, Dunn rose and began:

"There exist certain living exceptions to this general rule of justice. Captain Colthurst, who murdered Mr. Skelington and Captain Hardy, who murdered Brigadier."

Here the judge interrupted, saying that he would not allow the occasion to be used for political purposes.

The black cap was placed upon the judge's head. He then passed the sentence of death on Dunn. When he ended with the words, "and may the Lord have mercy on your soul," Dunn said quietly: "Me will, my lord."
